Do You Have What it Takes to Write for TV?

The TV Writers Studio at LIU Brooklyn is truly a one-of-a-kind program. Founded by Emmy-award winner Norman Steinberg, students who enroll in this intensive, two-year program will function collaboratively, much like the staff of an ongoing TV series; and independently, as writers/creators of their own series pilot. Upon completion of the 48-credit program, they will earn an MFA in Writing and Producing for Television. Come meet Norman and other faculty and get a feel for the program. This event is a must for passionate writers and creative minds seeking a rigorous, hands-on education and a career in television.

Noon - 1:00 p. m.
Media Arts Lounge, Humanities Building, 2nd Floor (4)
