Serving Our Alumni in Tough Times

During a down economy, many alumni will return to their alma mater to take classes and pursue new degrees that will help sharpen their skills and remain competitive in the marketplace. C.W. Post is offering several opportunities for alumni to make a professional change or to stay current in their field:

- Advanced Certificates: Beginning in January, C.W. Post will offer certificates that can be completed in under a year in sectors that offer promising employment opportunities. These include project management, elder care and school district business leadership. To learn more, click here.
- Special Services and Resources: In addition to academic programs, C.W. Post provides services and resources to help alumni reposition themselves in the marketplace. The Professional Experience and Career Planning Office (PEP) offers online resume critiques, career counseling and JobNet, an online career management system. Visit www.liu.edu/pep or call (516) 299-2251 for more information.
- $1,000 Alumni Scholarship: C.W. Post awards a $1,000 alumni scholarship to graduates of any Long Island University campus who wish to pursue their first master's degree. For more information, click here.
- College Affordability and Financial Aid Planning Workshops: We are offering workshops to alumni who have college-age children who need to make important decisions regarding the financing of their child's education. For more information, click here or call the Admissions Office at (516) 299-2900.

Homecoming & Family Day 2008

The campus welcomed back hundreds of C.W. Post alumni on Saturday, October 18. Thousands of students, parents and staff were also in attendance for the fall festival and tailgate tent party. For homecoming highlights, click here.

Wallace Foundation Donates $250K to Dr. Joseph Shenker Endowed Scholarship Fund

C.W. Post's late provost, Dr. Joseph Shenker, was a deeply committed member of the board of The Wallace Foundation, which was created by the founders of Reader's Digest magazine and is nationally recognized for its involvement in educational and cultural programs. In memory of Dr. Shenker, who passed away in September 2008, the Wallace Foundation has contributed $250,000 to the Joseph Shenker Endowed Scholarship Fund. Dr. Shenker was a passionate advocate of access to education throughout his career, and there could be no finer tribute to his memory than a gift that will help make education possible for future generations of students.
