President

Long Island University, one of the largest and most comprehensive private universities in the United States, has announced a nationwide search to recruit its 10th president to succeed Dr. David Steinberg, who is retiring in August 2013 after serving the institution with extraordinary distinction since 1985.

In its ninth decade of providing access to excellence in higher education to people from all walks of life, LIU is a multicampus, diverse, doctoral institution that offers more than 575 undergraduate, graduate and doctoral degree programs, educating more than 24,000 degree-credit and continuing education students at LIU Brooklyn, LIU Post, LIU Pharmacy (the Arnold & Marie Schwartz College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences), LIU Brentwood, LIU Riverhead, LIU Hudson at Rockland, LIU Hudson at Westchester and the overseas centers of LIU Global, and through LIU Online.

LIU is seeking an experienced leader with the vision and management qualities necessary to build on the institution's reputation, greatly expand its resources and take it to higher levels of academic quality and student success. Given its unique resources and prime location, LIU is poised to become a leading destination for students, faculty and staff.

The next president will play a central role in refining LIU's unique identity and will have the depth of management experience required to construct and execute strategies to achieve operational excellence in order to ensure its future success. The president will devote particular attention to the immediate goals of: building key internal and external relationships in order to expand available resources; shaping an inclusive process to determine how best to make critical decisions about LIU's infrastructure; developing and implementing plans to achieve sustainable enrollment growth; and infusing enthusiasm and excitement across its campuses.

Applications, nominations or confidential inquiries concerning this search may be sent by email to LIUPresident@wittkieffer.com or directed to John K. Thornburgh at (412) 209-2666 or Jean A. Dowdall, Ph.D., at (630) 575-6131. Review of candidate materials will begin in late 2012 with the goal of having the new president appointed by first quarter of 2013.
