The Richard L. Conolly College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the Outcomes Assessment Committee
Invite the LIU Brooklyn Campus Community to:

Measuring Learning in an Era of Completion: Strategies for Faculty

Tuesday, October 16, 2012 Noon to 2 pm, Location: Library Learning Center 515

Presenter: Robert Pacheco (Dean, MiraCosta College)

Many colleges struggle with measuring and aligning program and degree outcomes with course and campus level outcomes. How can you assess learning at all these levels without adding unnecessary burdens or extra workload? What kind of processes can be designed to engage the entire college community in meaningful dialogue about teaching and learning? How do we capture our assessment stories in a report that guides practice and also helps us meet our pledge of quality assurance?

Come join us for this session with Dean Pacheco. Participants will a) investigate authentic and sustainable models of outcomes-based assessment that shows student achievement at the course, program and degree levels, b) review practices that support course improvement and meaningful dialogue about the assessment results, and c) design reporting processes that fit the culture of their own departments or programs.